

Problem Statement:

While there are ways to prevent misplacing your car keys, there is no sort of way of tracking down car keys once they are misplaced

Who is affected by this problem:

- Everyone who owns a vehicle is affected by this problem because it is easy to lose your keys and there is no sort of built in GPS tracker to find your keys easier or built in tracker

What is the problem and where does it present itself

- The problem is the struggle of losing your car keys and not having a built in tracker or GPS system to help locate them. Many companies now have keyfobs so the opportunity of adding a built in tracker is a missed opportunity that can still be executed as many other companies have built in trackers in their products so what is stopping car manufactures implementing it onto their keys. This would be very beneficial for everyone as it saves much time from getting a new key from misplacing or losing it somewhere one cannot remember